Please never fly faster than your Guardian angel , your family loves
you!

The legend of the bell
Legend has it that there is a lonely cyclist driving on the highway at night. The evil road elf surrounded the motorcycle in an attempt to make it lose control, crash or fall to the ground.

At this moment, a mysterious person appeared and gave him a small bell as a gift, telling him that this little bell
could keep the elves away from them
and protect the safety of the cyclists
while riding!

If you give him as a gift to family or friends, the magic will double!

The Rules of the Bell:

There are some “rules,” however, to the Guardian/ Gremlin Bell and how it works:

1. It should not be bought by the user - in order to work, it must be given to a rider from a loved one. According to the legend, a bell is “activated” by the gesture of good will when someone, especially another rider, gives it to a rider they care about as a gift.

2. It should be attached to the lowest part of the frame. Because gremlins lurk on the roadways and “grab” onto bikes as they pass by, the low-hanging bell should be the first thing they contact, so that they are immediately captured by it. It should be attached securely – safety wire is sometimes used, but that can create rust and scratches, so a zip-tie is generally the preferred method.

3. When a bike with a bell on it is sold, it should be removed. The Gremlin Bell is a gesture of kindness to a rider from someone who cares about them, so it should be kept by the intended recipient, and can be transferred to another bike. If someone sells a bike with a bell and they want the new rider to have it, they should still remove it, and give it to them face to face.

4. A bell that is not given with intentional good will lose its spirit-fighting mojo. If someone steals a Gremlin Bell, the gremlins go with it – and the bell will no longer ward them off. The key to the bell's power is good will. If it is stolen, it loses its effect...and karma will take care of the rest!

5. One Guardian Bell is all that a bike will need if all of the above rules are followed. Ride safe, and KNOW that you are loved!
